STEPHENS COUNTY.

A Chat With Two of Its Prominent Men.

Yesterday a GAZETTE reporter had the pleasure of meeting with two leading citizens of Stephens county, Judge William Veal of Breckenridge, and Capt. J. J. Anderson of Crystal Falls. Judge Veal is one of the foremost lawyers of his section, and Capt. Robinson is a substantial merchant and gin owner. Both are representative men of progressive ideas. The reporter having a suspicion that they were here on railroad business, tackled them outright on the matter, but found the gentlemen a little reticent though very courteous. They admitted, however, that they had hopes of securing the Fort Worth Western, and through other sources it was learned that the officials of that road had made a proposition to the people of Stephens, offering to build a line through that county (the Albany branch) for a reasonable bonus, right of way and depot grounds. The preliminary lines are to be run early this spring if satisfactory arrangements are made.

Capt. Robinson brought with him some beautiful specimens of coal taken from mines near Crystal Falls, which is said by competent judges to be fully as good as that mined in the Territory. The gentleman has used it for years in his business and says it has given complete satisfaction. "There are inexhaustible beds of it," said he, "and all we lack is a little capital to develop them and transportation facilities."

Both gentlemen spoke freely of the condition of their county, which is in the drouth belt. They do not look on the drouth in any other light than a temporary setback and are full of hope for the future. A good many people are in needy circumstances and they hope the legislature will give the desired relief. They endorse the stand taken by THE GAZETTE on this subject.

The growing crops need rain, but what, they say, is looking well under the circumstances, and will yet yield abundantly if rain comes. Cattle are in fine fix, and were never fatter at this season.

Messrs. Veal and Robinson are full of friendly feeling toward Fort Worth, and look pleasantly forward to the time when their splendid section will be directly connected with the Queen City.

COUNTERFEITERS.

A Man and Woman Put in Jail for Making "The Queen" in Fort Worth.

The Female Makes a Fierce Fight, but in Vain—Confederates Caught at Alvarado.

The following dispatch was received by City Marshal Rea Wednesday: "Arrest Mrs. Wiley and John Callahan, living on Main and Tenth street, over Isenhower's store, for counterfeiting. Give them no chance to talk as others are suspected. Have three boys arrested who gave the thing away. Answer at once."

"M. M. MOSLEY," "Western Union Detective."

The marshal did not deem it advisable to make the arrest merely on this dispatch, though a watch was kept upon the parties. Last night between 8 and 9 o'clock, Deputy United States Marshal Tom Gerren, accompanied by Deputy McBryde, arrived in the city, and without loss of time proceeded to the place indicated in the Alvarado telegram, Isenhower's store. Ascending to the second floor they entered an apartment in which was seated the woman they wanted, Mrs. Wiley. On a bed lay a sick man whom she seemed to be waiting on. The woman instantly seemed to divine what the officers were there for, but instead of appearing frightened, she assumed a defiant role.

"I know what you are here for, you—(a long string of profanity). You've come for money have you? Let's see you get any. Pull your warrant if you want to."

In compliance with her request Gerren drew out the paper when she charged on him like an enraged tigress, and succeeded in tearing off one corner of the document. He caught her wrist but she jerked loose and hit McBryde, who had come to the rescue, a stinging blow over the eye. Then she fought both for a few minutes like mad, biting and scratching with all the earnestness that a female highly wrought up is noted for. But her strength was finally exhausted and the officers led her down stairs. All the way to the county jail she struggled to get free, and lashed the men with her tongue in true Amazonian style.

But it did not good, and she was thrust into a cell. The man lying in the bed was not the one they were after, and hurrying back, the officers were lucky enough to catch Callahan, who was just going to the woman's apartment. He immediately confessed and was taken to the jail immediately.

There is little doubt that they are guilty either of making or showing counterfeit money in the shape of bogus silver dollars, which were so plentiful here lately. The woman remarked at the time of her arrest that the officers wouldn't get a nickel. She said she had just burned up a dollar in the stove, and that the rest was hid where nobody would find it. It was the officers' intention to search the woman's room for counterfeiting tools, but the result of their examination was not learned. The woman is about twenty-five years old, exceeding hard featured, and about as tough as women get. She has been in Fort Worth several months, and formerly lived on Calhoun street and had the reputation of being a "kept" woman.

The following dispatch from Alvarado shows the modus operandi of the gang there who gave away the pair at Fort Worth: Special to the Gazette.

ALVARADO, TEX., Jan. 20.—A man and two boys, claiming to be from Fort Worth, were arrested to-day in South Alvarado for passing counterfeit money on G. G. Golding, E. T. Ross and Borum, merchants of our town. They would buy 5 cents' worth of stuff and give a dollar to be changed. The man gave his name as Cargel. The two boys, about fifteen years old, are boot-blacks, and seem to be old in the business. The United States marshal came after them to-night. The prisoners will be taken to Dallas some time to-day to have a preliminary hearing before the United States commissioner.

Complimentary Ball.

Monday night a ball will be given in honor of several young ladies visiting in Fort Worth. The affair will take place at the Hotel Pickwick, and socially will be a great success.

Refrigerator Company.

A corporation has been formed to operate the refrigerator plant in this city. The company is composed of Messrs. I. Dahlman, Thos. Roach, Louis Stein, C. L. Frost and E. A. Morse. The names will be recognized as those of solid and prominent business men of Fort Worth. The application for a charter was forwarded to the state capitol several days ago. THE GAZETTE understands the company will put the works in operation at an early day, and wishes them all possible success.

STILL HE VETOES.

The Mayor Disapproves the Ordinance Abolishing His Power to Reimburse.

As was expected, Mayor Broiles filed his veto yesterday of the ordinance passed Tuesday, which takes away from him the power to remit fines imposed in the recorder's court. That ordinance passed the council by the following vote: Ayes—Haymsker, Tatum, Darter, Daggett, Bronson and Mulkey; nays—Cooper and Hill. Of the six aldermen voting to thus take away from the mayor the prerogative he has, to draw it mild, used so lavishly, not one is likely to change his mind by reason of the veto. Hence the requisite two-thirds majority will sustain the ordinance.

The veto is largely taken up with an account of the way the marshal collects fines due by city convicts—a question seemingly very foreign to the point at issue. The only argument he makes against depriving the mayor of this power, which really belongs to the council, is that a man who was unjustly fined would have to lie in the calaboose till the council met to consider his case, or if a called meeting was had it would entail additional expense on the city.

Another ordinance forbidding the erection of show windows so as to obstruct the streets is also vetoed. The latter is disapproved on the ground that a former council did not see fit to hinder the building of such windows, and that if others are now forbidden to do so, it will be showing partiality or granting "special privileges." He begs of the council, in both vetoes, to reconsider their "hasty action."

As an instance of his desperate determination to hold on to his power, the mayor remitted a fine yesterday morning before the court had adjourned. A fel-

Weather Probabilities.

SATURDAY Evening, Jan. 15.

We wrote last week, there would be a rain period, 15th to 18th inst. That warm weather would come before it, and cold weather after it. The warm weather is here. The rain period, just ahead of us, is not a strong one, yet with this high thermometer, if there was any moisture

in the ground it would rain in twenty-four hours. We do not claim there will be rainfall at all of our periods, but the chances are, it will rain at our periods or not at all. Later on, last January and during the month of February the strongest periods will probably produce general

rains, then we will get rid of the dryness of the earth. Earthquakes occur at our periods. Earthquakes occur through deep caverns in the sea and shake

the near by coast. When earthquakes occur in the sea the water over it rises up almost like a mountain, and a ship just over it would have to sail down hill. If the artesian water under us is five miles

or more deep we may have an earthquake

here some day. Please read our advertisement in another column, it will make you feel a little like a miner, who, with one stroke of his pick-axe, lays open a vein of precious metal and becomes rich.
